Some points to consider

1. Not all jobs require an initial consultation. However, I insist upon such interviews for all weddings. Additionally, if you are concerned about the quality of the finished product, you should have a consultation.
2. I will not accept any job I feel I cannot do well, or one that represents too much extra rehearsal time. I will be up front in explaining any concerns I have with the job, just as I hope you will be.
3. The figures above are guidelines only. We will work out the exact exchange between us so that each side is comfortable with the terms.
4. I do not require deposits or contracts for jobs with individuals. If, after your consultation, you still want a contract from me, then please take your business elsewhere. In 4 decades of performing for private functions, I never have been "stiffed" nor have I stiffed those depending on me, unless seriously ill, a VERY infrequent occurrence. If there is no trust, then I have no interest in performing.
5. Corporations must sign contracts stating the terms of payment.
6. I will need payment the day of the event, cash or check to "Dan Starr."
